METHODOLOGY STATEMENT

The Univision Noticias poll interviewed 1,401 Latino registered voters nationwide from September 11 - 19, 2023. Full sample estimates have a margin of error (MOE) of +/- 2.6 percentage points. The poll includes an oversample of 759 Latino Republicans (MOE +/- 3.6 points). This oversample is drawn from those who indicated that they intend to vote in Republican primary contests in 2024. The final sample was weighted to match the known demographic characteristics of Latino registrants based on data from the U.S. Census CPS as well as from national voter files. More precisely, respondents were weighted to provide representative balances across a range of variables, including state of residence, gender, age, education, nativity, ethnic origin, and partisanship. Respondents were randomly selected and contacted through a variety of modes, including live telephone call, text-invite, and email. Some respondents were from online panels matched to the voter file. Respondents completed their surveys on the phone with a live interviewer or online via the web. Both phone and web-based interviews allowed respondents to complete the survey in either English or Spanish, at their discretion. The survey was overseen by Univision director of polling Dr. Sergio Garcia-Rios and designed and implemented by BSP Research and Shaw & Company Research.
